

Rose's Birthday

Rose's Birthday

Jake, Jane, and Rose ate too much.
They felt ill and had to take a nap.

Rose's Birthday

Written by Ned Jensen
Illustrated by Fred Volke

In their best tone,
they sang Happy Birthday.
They ate the cake.
They ate grapes and dates.

ELEMENTS USED IN THIS BOOK
New phonic element	VCe long /ō/
Words with new phonic element	drove, grove, hole, home, hope, joke, mole, nose, note, poke, Rose, slope, smoke, spoke, stone, stove, tone, tote
Reviewed phonic elements	initial and final blends; VCe long /ā/
Story words	behind, birthday, bracelet, happy
New high-frequency words	come, day, much, our
Special considerations	inflectional endings -ed, -s; contractions; possessive apostrophe 's

Jane and Jake gave Rose
a bracelet for her birthday.
Their mom got a cake out of the stove.

Rose the mole woke up.
She poked her nose out of a hole.

"It is my birthday," she said.
"I hope I have a swell day."

Just then Jake and Jane jumped out from behind a big stone.
"Happy Birthday," they yelled.
"Let's go skate."

Rose spotted a note from Jake and Jane snake.
The note said,
"We want you to come
to our home.
Take your skates with you."

Rose spoke, "Is this a joke?"
 Rose saw no trace of Jake and Jane.
 The bus stopped at Jake and Jane's place.

Rose put her skates in a tote.
 Then she went to the bus stop.
 She skipped over stones.
 She went past a hole.

The bus smoked as it drove up a big slope.
It drove past a lake,
a grove, a glade
and a pig in a cage.

The bus came up the lane.
The man hit the brakes
and the bus stopped.
Rose got on the bus.